A Message from the Head

Pages 2-3 celebrate the 80th anniversary of the United Nations, providing a great opportunity for discussions at home about incredible work this global organisation does.

Today we said a fond farewell to one of our amazing Hedgehogs, who is moving on to a mainstream school nearer to his home. Rogan, it has been a pleasure to see you flourish and thrive and we know you'll do well at your new school if you keep being you! Good luck from all of us.

Happy 80th Anniversary to the United Nations (UN)

UN Rights of the Child

For 80 years, the United Nations has helped countries work together on peace, rights and protecting people around the world. It also created the Rights of the Child, which children should learn about, and adults should help to protect and uphold.

Resource
one

Look at the resource below, which shares some more information about the UN Rights of the Child.

19 Right 19 – The right to be safe
Adults keep children safe and help them feel cared for.

28 Right 28 – The right to go to school and learn
School is where children learn, make friends and get ready for the future.

31 Right 31 – The right to play and rest
Play helps children have fun, learn and be with friends. Children also need time to rest.

24 Right 24 – The right to be healthy
Children need clean water, healthy food and a safe place to live, so they can grow strong and stay well.

12 Right 12 – The right to be listened to Children's ideas and feelings matter, and adults should listen carefully.

Which of these rights do you use every day?

Do you think any are more important than others, or do you think they are equally important?

Look at the resource below, which shares some information about how the United Nations makes decisions.

1 Spot a problem

A world issue is raised that affects many countries, like war, poverty, or climate change.

2 Debate and discuss

Representatives meet to explain their ideas, listen to others, and share different views.

5 Report back

The UN checks progress and shares what has been achieved, ready to start the cycle again if more needs to be done.

4 Take action

The UN helps to put the decision into practice. This might mean sending peacekeepers, giving aid, or supporting new rules.

3 Negotiate and agree

Countries work together to find a solution. Sometimes they compromise or vote to make a fair decision.

How decisions are made at the UN

Which part of the UN's decision-making cycle do you think is the most important? Why?

In the news this week

This year marks the 80th anniversary of the United Nations (UN), an international organisation founded after the Second World War in 1945, to help countries work together and prevent future conflicts. Today, 193 nations are members, and the UN works on issues like peacekeeping, human rights, health, and climate change. Leaders and communities around the world are reflecting on how important working together is in solving global problems.

Things to talk about at home ...

- > Why do you think countries made the decision to work together?
- > What problems today do you believe countries need to solve together? Ask others at home what they think.
- > Come up with different ways we can be 'peacekeepers' in our own families, schools, or communities.
